Media Coverage...

I don't know about you, but for me as the stories about the treasure grow in number it is increasingly difficult to remember where everything is located. This post will contain links to audio, video and written articles about Forrest and the search. We will start with a few and add more as I find them. Please email any media link about Forrest or the treasure that you don't see here. If you note that a link has gone dead please email me.

Jean Lotus wrote an article for UPI on February 18, 2020. She used some of info from Dr. Alan King's paper on Treasure Hunters that came out last week and is linked in the previous citation. Jean's story can be found HERE.

An estimated 2 million Americans are actively in the search for Forrest's chest. That's the number arrived at by Dr. Alan King in his paper, just published in the "Human Arenas Journal".

Alan is with the Psychology Dept. at the University of North Dakota. He spent time with many searchers last summer and even more time researching the Chase, and us who are involved in it. He also collected data from searchers via this website and others. His end game was an academic paper characterizing searchers.

The paper was published on February 11, 2020 and is titled "Treasure Hunting as an American Subculture". Alan sent along a link to his website where you can view some of his photos that don't appear in the report and on that page is a link to the paper itself.

When you click on the link HERE you will go to Alan's website with a gallery of photos. On the top left of that page is a green box that reads: "Journal Publications". Clicking on that box will take you to the report on the journal's website...

There is another green box on the far right that reads "Time Line, Close Encounters..." Clicking on that box will call up a page of quotes. Some common...some rarely read. Anyway...have fun and enjoy reading about yourself...
